Nina Sibal - A Remembrance

Ms. Nina Sibal
1948-2000

For those of you, who will be receiving the Nina Sibal Award, it is important to know something about the person after whom the award is instituted. As a young student, Nina was outstanding, brilliant, mercurial, full of enthusiasm and loved life to its fullest. She was also a person in a hurry. Twenty four hours of the day were not enough for her. She was a born achiever. A voracious writer of fiction, her first love was writing. She adored nature in all its wildness and felt equally at home in the midst of forests and mountains, lost in their beauty, discovering peace and serenity. For all those she touched, she will always be remembered as “loving, emotive and a doer.”

She had the capacity to work with persons at all levels, from Heads of States and persons at the highest echelons of diplomatic life to the poor, the needy and the challenged, with whom she felt most comfortable. There was never a moment that she did not talk about doing something for them. In her stint in the United Nations in the 2nd Committee of the General Assembly, she always fought for the rights of those in the less developed world. The rights of the child, empowerment and emancipation of women and the obligations of society towards those challenged were issues closest to her heart. In any conversation on any of these subjects, we always knew the position she would take and she never hesitated to enthuse persons to fight for their rights. She was always with the weak against the strong, the oppressed against the oppressor, the poor against the rich and the challenged against those who are insensitive to their concerns. That is where she stood and always wanted to stand.

Her journey was filled with the battles she fought for the less privileged. Some said she was obstinate on those issues and that she was occasionally irrational about the concerns of the less privileged.

But there was an element of consistency in what she stood for. In that sense, life was a struggle, a battle for a cause that needed support and she had enormous strength to always fight for those causes. In the last years of her life, she fought her biggest battle against an affliction that ultimately took her away from us. But as she had done throughout, she fought her battle bravely and with great dignity. Despite knowing that the might of the affliction was gaining ground, she never gave up. She also realized that she had to fight that battle on her own. She had indomitable courage and in moments of extreme adversity felt that she was being wronged. That is how she went fighting the last battle of her life. She died the way she lived.

ABOUT AIWEFA

AIWEFA (All India Women's Education Fund Association), an NGO, was founded in 1929 under the leadership of Mahatma Gandhi. In 1932 AIWEFA established the Lady Irwin College, New Delhi, with an objective to inculcate a scientific temper in women's education.

As it completes over nine decades of service, AIWEFA campaigns nationally and internationally through its field projects, seminars, workshops, conferences, publications and networking to bring about a sustainable approach to human development and the advancement of weaker sections.

In 1999, AIWEFA was granted the “NGO in Special Consultative Status with the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations” (ECOSOC). In 2003 AIWEFA accepted the role of Regional Coordinator of the U.N.'s Informal Regional Network of NGOs (NGO IRENE). In 2017 AIWEFA was conferred the Observer Status with UNFCCC.

In recent years, AIWEFA's programmes include national conferences: 'Transition of women from education to full employment' and 'Ensuring healthy lives and promotion of wellness in old age'; 'Promotion and development of handicrafts from locally available resources' from Andaman and Nicobar Islands; the National 'Khadi Goes Global' campaign; the North East expo and conference to showcase the culture, handloom textiles, natural foods and the farm sector; college and school workshops on cyber security, 'Prevention of Drug Abuse' and 'Promoting Intergenerational Bonding'.

The COVID-19 webinar series include 'Sustainable Solutions for people with disabilities'; intergenerational bonding and inclusion of Elders; Specific Learning Disabilities (SLD) (Dyslexia).

Internationally at the United Nations AIWEFA's programmes include “A World We Women Want” to document robust Sustainable Development Goals implementation strategies from Asia and Africa; women's economic empowerment; “Khadi Goes Global” campaign on sustainable entrepreneurship practices with events, fashion shows and exhibitions. Online side events with the Permanent Mission of India on a gender-just and violence-free world; Lifestyle for the Environment (LIFE).

AIWEFA has administered the AIWEFA - Nina Sibal Memorial Award since 2003. Through this award AIWEFA acknowledges innovative and exceptional organizational work for children with disabilities. The award endowment has been made by Shri. Kapil Sibal, Senior Advocate & M.P. Rajya Sabha, in memory of his late wife Smt. Nina Sibal.
